October 2013

October is finally here and it's time for us to gather again for our Fall meeting at the Petroleum Club. This meeting will be a very busy one. Mary Eck, our Vice President has arranged for a very interesting program that I know you will not want to miss. In addition we have several important items of business to address, including selecting a nominating committee.

Rose Marie Henry and I represented each of you at the Fall Workshop in Salado in September. This year our State President, Ora Jane Johnson, asked each chapter that could to bring a gift basket for a silent auction, the proceeds of which would be used to support the State President's Project. Our chapter contributed a B-B-Q Bonanza basket. The event was such a success that the chapters have been asked to repeat the event at the State Conference in Temple next February.

State President's Project

This lovely bicentennial medallion was selected to support the State President's project. Funds from the sale of this medallion will be used to purchase JROTC medals where there is not an 1812 chapter and to mark 1812 patriot graves and direct daughter graves.

Contact Janisue Rigel at Janisue@aol.com to order your medal and arrange shipping. When your check for $30 (which includes medallion, chain and mailing) arrives, the medallion will be shipped.

Committee Reports

Information for committee chairs will be handed out at our October meeting. The reports should be filled out and returned to Pam Daniel by the December meeting.

Chapter Donations

The David Crockett Chapter sends a modest donation to each item listed on the included donations sheet. Please review this carefully to see if you might like to "adopt" one of these worthy causes by sending an additional donation. Our treasurer, Rose Marie Henry, will be happy to assist you! Donations are due soon, so don't delay!

Delegates & Alternates Needed!

Ladies, we have two opportunities to serve our society as a delegate or an alternate to our annual meetings. Please consider allowing your name to be put forward at the October meeting to serve in this capacity. You'll have a great time and meet many lovely ladies who share your enthusiasm for USD 1812.

New Star-Spangled Banner takes shape

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was 200 years ago this summer that a Baltimore flag-maker stitched the flag that inspired America's national anthem. Now, hundreds of people are helping to recreate the star-spangled banner.

The project began July 4 in Baltimore, and it is expected to take volunteers six weeks to hand-sew the estimated 150,000 stitches in the famous flag. When finished, it will be about a quarter of the size of a basketball court.

The public gets a chance to help with the sewing Saturday and again next week. Hundreds have signed up to participate.

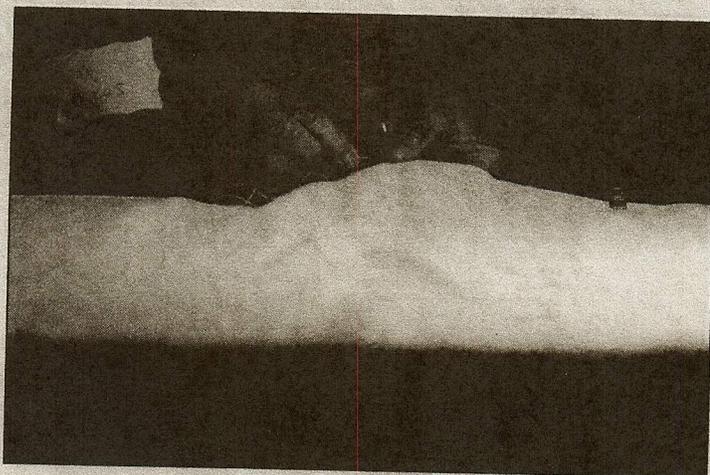

"It makes the link with the past in a very tangible way," said Kristin Schenning, who is coordinating the project for the Maryland Historical Society in Baltimore and helping to raise the money for the flag's approximately $12,000 cost.

The finished piece won't look like the 13-stripe, 50-star flag of today. Instead, the flag has 15 stripes and 15 stars representing the number of states in the Union when the flag was stitched to fly over Baltimore's Fort McHenry in 1813. The sight of the flag's broad stripes and bright stars still waving after the British attacked the fort during the War of 1812 inspired Francis Scott Key to write his now-iconic lyrics.

The flag was a bold statement from the start. Fort McHenry commander Maj. George Armistead said he wanted a flag so large that the British would "have no difficulty in seeing it from a distance." Local flag-maker Mary Pickersgill was paid $405.90 to sew the 30-foot-by-42-foot (9-meter-by-13-meter) flag, which ultimately became so large that Pickersgill and her helpers took over space at a local brewery to sew.

Thought the flag was sewn by Betsy Ross? Not true. Ross gets credit for sewing America's first flag at the request of George Washington in 1777, but that wasn't the one that inspired Key's "Star-Spangled Banner."

This isn't the first time Marylanders have recreated the banner. In 1964, a replica was made for the New York World's Williamsburg, taught a core group of volunteers the stitches and seams that were used.

Now, around 200 volunteers, most of them women and many of them from quilting societies, are piecing the flag together in an auditorium at the Maryland Historical Society. Jan Lucas, 56, a quilter from Eldersburg, Md., said working on the project makes her feel like she's "a piece of history," and other stitchers agreed.

"It's like taking you back 200 years to what they had to work on then. It's fun, it really is," said Carole Lee Custer, 65, a quilter from Halethorpe, Md., who generally works on the flag once a week.

The plan is to hoist the finished piece at Baltimore's Fort McHenry as part of a celebration on Defenders Day, Sept. 12, the day that commemorates the successful defense of the city during the War of 1812.

This time, the historical society did a lot of research before stitching began. BICENTENNIAL OF THE WAR OF 1812

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, today I wish to commemorate the bicentennial of the beginning of the War of 1812, on June 18, 2012, in the Record.

President James Madison signed a declaration of war against Great Britain on June 18, 1812. The sacrifices by those soldiers, citizens, and their families who fought in the War of 1812 further defended the liberties previously won in the American Revolution. These sacrifices include heroic efforts by Dolley Madison to save some of our national treasures from destruction during the burning of the White House by the British on August 24, 1814. The conflict and bravery shown during this conflict would inspire Francis Scott Key to write a poem describing the bombardment of Fort McHenry in Baltimore Harbor, and this would later become our country's national anthem, known as the "Star Spangled Banner."

The War of 1812 further solidified the independence of the United States from Great Britain, and the Treaty of Ghent was signed on December 24, 1814, to end the War of 1812. Many Georgia residents can trace their lineages back to these patriotic early settlers.

Descendants of the veterans of the War of 1812 chartered the Georgia State Society within the General Society of the United States Daughters of 1812 on June 18, 1901, to promote a general awareness of the history of the War of 1812 among the citizens of Georgia and the Nation. As we observe the bicentennial of the War of 1812, I urge all citizens to become more knowledgeable of the role the War of 1812 played in the history of our great Nation and the State of Georgia.

Since that time, 23 chapters have been organized in the state of Texas. The first Texas State President was Mrs. Z.T. Fillmore from Austin, who served from 1903-07.

Texas Society USD 1812 daughters attending were served a luncheon prepared by the Thomas Bay Members. Each attendee was given a copy of the "A History of the Texas Society of the National Society United States Daughters of 1812" 1903-80 as a "thank you" from Thomas Bay Chapter President Janisue Rigel.

Members from the Texas Society came from as far as Lubbock to attend this event. A total of 49 daughters, seven state officers and one national officer attended this event.

Members of the John S. Roberts Chapter of the United Daughters of 1812 met recently to hear Linda Nichols present the story of Laura Secord's 20-mile trek through enemy territory to warn of an upcoming attack.
